

Sonia Merlano Gaitan

Nuclear Medicine Physician, Fundacion Abood Shaio, Bogota, Colombia

Dr Merlano Gaitán is a Physician and General Surgeon at the Juan N. Corpas School of Medicine Bogota. She studied Nuclear Cardiology at Emory University in the United States and received a master's degree in clinical Epidemiology at the Javeriana University. She trained as a nuclear medicine physician at the Javeriana University and the National Cancer Institute of Internal Medicine and became a specialist in health management. Her additional activities include certification as a national and international quality auditor, university education specialist at the Universidad Militar Nueva Granada, President of the Colombian Association of Nuclear Medicine, Secretary of the Ibero-American Society of Biology and Nuclear Medicine from 1993-1995, Javeriana University Clinical Health Economics teacher, Assistant Professor at the Universidad El Bosque. Dr Merlano Gaitán was also Chief of the Department of Nuclear Medicine at the A. Shaio Foundation from 2002-2008, a trainer in ontological coaching at the Newfield School and an international speaker in nuclear cardiology and quality systems. Achievements include the Ibero-American award for Clinical Research Hugo Claure in 1996 and the Excellence Award in Internal Medicine.