

Erica Boswell Munroe

Attorney-at-law/Senior Consultant Legislative Drafter, Kingston, Jamaica

Ms Munroe practiced as an attorney-at-law and master legislative drafter in the Office of the Parliamentary Counsel. She retired from that office as Deputy Chief Parliamentary Counsel to take up the post of Legal Consultant, Financial Institutions Legislative Reform in the Bank of Jamaica. She is also contracted to the Ministry of National Security to work on anti-gang and security policies.

Ms Munroe has a Bachelor of Arts degree in Public Administration and Bachelor of Laws degree and a Master of Laws degree in Legislative Drafting. She is specialized in gender and development from the University of West Indies, Cave Hill Campus and certified in law development from the Swedish Institute of Law and Development. Ms Munroe specializes in the drafting of banking and financial legislation, social and welfare legislation, the incorporation of international treaties into domestic law, and nuclear law. She is an expert of the IAEA and the Chemical Weapons Convention. She has worked as consultant to the Governments of Bermuda and Grenada and lectured for the IAEA in Nuclear Law. She is an Adjunct Lecturer at the Faculty of the Management Institute for National Development and the University of the West Indies, Mona Campus, where she lectures in Tort Law and Occupational Health and Safety Law. She is also a tutor in Legal Drafting at the Norman Manley Law School. Ms Munroe lectured in Tort and Public Law in the LLB (London) degree preparation course offered by the University College of the Caribbean for ten years.