

Angelika Bischof Delaloye

Centre Hospitalier Universitaire Vaudois and University of Lausanne, Switzerland

Angelika Bischof Delaloye is the former Head of the Nuclear Medicine Service of Centre Hospitalier Universitaire Vaudois, former President of the European Association of Nuclear Medicine, and former President of the Swiss Society of Nuclear Medicine as well as currently a full Professor of Nuclear Medicine at Lausanne University. She is actively involved with the development of programmes for the accreditation of Nuclear Medicine Departments and Training Centres as well as the European Board Exam in Nuclear Medicine. She has been a long standing expert at IAEA Division of Human Health, particularly involved with the development of QUANUM (Quality Assurance in Nuclear Medicine). Additionally, she is currently serving as the Editor in Chief of EJNMMI Research, as well as the Associate Editor and member of the Editorial Board for numerous international nuclear medicine journals.